Hints for Mothers on How to Dress Baby—Don't Keep Them Too Warm—Housekeeping and the Tariff—Few Women Give Tariff a Single Intelligent Thought—Maline Sleeves—Single Sleeve on Evening Gowns—Very Effective—Angel Sleeves Still in Vogue.

HOW TO DRESS YOUR BABY

Having learned how to feed your baby right one of the most important things for you to know is how to dress him.

A great deal of harm can be done by dressing him too much—by that I mean putting too much clothing on him and having it too tight.

A great many mothers keep their baby too warm; they are too much afraid the little one will catch cold. Remember, baby is a warm little body; warmer than old people and feels the heat much more.

In hot weather, then, you can not be too careful not to have too much clothing on him.

There is much more chance of his being overheated than of his catching cold—at any rate too much clothing makes him fretful and restless.

Besides, you must dress him right if you want him to get the fresh air. Don't think you have given him enough fresh air by simply allowing him to breathe it into his lungs; his whole body needs it.

You should dress him as much as possible so that every bit of his tender skin should have a chance to breathe.

More than that, tight clothing keeps baby's lungs from acting freely and hinders the movement of his blood.

That means that no matter how well you feed him his food does not get a chance to build up his little body, and he will grow weak, thin and stunted.

A baby to have good blood must have good air in his lungs as well as good food in his stomach. Rich blood to make baby grow must have a chance to circulate through his little body.

HOUSEKEEPING AND THE TARIFF

You know all about the grocery bill, and all about the clothing and housefurnishing bill. But how much do you know about the big international tariff bill which affects the cost of nearly every item you pay for?

You are concerned about the high cost of living. How much do you know about the causes that make it high? Don't you think it would interest you to find out what the causes are? And then you could begin to think about what would be the best way to again bring the price of living down within the reach of people with moderate or small means.

Do you say that these national matters do not concern you? That you leave all such things to the men who are running things?

Well, there are several reasons why these matters should concern you very much indeed.

For one thing, it is the women of this country who spend nearly every penny of all the ten billions of dollars spent annually for food and clothing.

Just as you are the spender in your own home, so it is the women all over the land who are the spenders for domestic interests and comforts and for the nation's clothing.

It is the women who must make one dollar do the work of two—quite as difficult, I think those who have tried it will acknowledge, as earning the dollars in the first place.

So you see, then, that women may well think about how to spend this money intelligently, and that in order to do so they need to know something about why the cost of sugar is so high, and why the cost of shoes and clothing goes up, and why meat has risen to price that puts it among the luxuries.

Don't you think it would interest you to know about the tariff rates on linens and cotton goods and silks and gloves and stockings and all the other things you wear and buy for your family to wear?

Surely no one has so close an interest in all these things as women have, or should have, if they want to be intelligent spenders.

The tariff and the trusts—those two gigantic mysteries which the average little housewife runs away from the mere mention of, as in no way concerned with her or her home—are in reality inseparably bound up with the interests and welfare of the humblest house or the tiniest flat in the land.

Why, the very plate you eat from, the linen tablecloth under the plate, half the cooking utensils in the kitchen, the draperies in the windows, the rug on the floor, the chair you sit on and the bed you sleep in, are every one of them affected in price and quality directly or indirectly, by this same tariff bill.

Which you persist in regarding as so remote and unimportant for a woman's interest?

So are the stockings and shoes on your feet affected by it; the warm underwear, the simplest undermuslin, the silk petticoat, the dress, the coat, the hat, the gloves, the furs.

It is probable that the smallest button on your clothes at this moment is in some way affected—made better or worse, cheaper or dearer—by this same remote and inconsequential tariff bill and these same mysterious trusts!

And I am certain that practically every article of food on your table is, directly or indirectly.

So is the house in which you live. It is the tariff and the trusts that sometimes make building material so high that you might as well build a castle in Spain as a cottage in the country.

To know the why and wherefore of these things, and to try to think out some kind of personal solution of them, seems to me a game in which women are so very much concerned that they, least of all, can afford to let it go on over their heads without giving it a single intelligent thought.

M'GOORTY GIVEN DECISION

Sydney, N. S. W., March 15.—Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, Wis., was given the decision over Jeff Smith, another American fighter at the end of a hard fought 20-round bout yesterday. The referee's decision was unpopular. The fight took place in the Stadium and was witnessed by 15,000 persons.

MALINE SLEEVES

Many a passe evening gown is now being furnished by means of the fashionable maline sleeves for by recourse to the slit and the sham petticoat the skirt of almost any festive costume may be brought up to date.

But if its sleeves are out of style, the bodice will be hopeless. No matter how the evening gown's waist is fashioned, sleeves in maline may be adapted to it. They may be merely puffs set with just a little fullness into the armholes and gathered above the elbow under a row of brilliant or seed pearls or they may be angel sleeves set in deep folds over the top of the arm and ending in a tasseled point far below the hips.

Very charming on an evening gown is the single sleeve consisting of a two-yard length of maline, drawn over the top of the arm and caught in below it at both front and back with slender jeweled buttons or with pink silk flowers. From there it forms a scarf that falls to the knees.

The "apology" for a sleeve on the other arm consists of several strands of chains in jets, brilliants or pearls that cross the top of the shoulder and the arm and fall to the hips.

BUILDING BOOM IN SIGHT FOR POCATELLO

Pocatello, Idaho, March 15.—Lyman Fargo, president of the Bannock National bank, yesterday commenced the work preliminary to the construction of an apartment house which will cost about $75,000. N. P. Nielson is another who will build an apartment house this summer. Fifty different sets of plans for as many buildings are now being drawn by local architects.

WEDDING PLANS MADE PUBLIC

New York, March 15.—Final details of the plan for the marriage of Miss Helen Dinmore Huntington to Vincent Astor on April 30 were gone over today by Mr. Astor and Mrs. Huntington, mother of his fiancée.

The ceremony is to be performed at St. Margaret's church, Staatsburg, L. I., by the Rev. C. S. Duncan. The arrangements will allow but 250 guests because of the size of the church. Invitations will be sent out next week.

A special train will take the guests from New York to Staatsburg. Wallace Goodrich, former organist of Trinity church, Boston, will play the wedding march. The bride's mother was married in the same church twenty-two years ago.

Miss Alice Huntington, sister of the bride, will be her only attendant. Mr. Astor has invited Herman Oelrichs to be his best man. The couple plans to spend their honeymoon motoring in England and France, and on Mr. Astor's yacht.

A HANDSOME WHITE SUIT

Harmony of line, to use the recently adopted catch phrase, is pleasingly evident in the suit from which this sketch was made. The material is white serge with white buttons and a mauve and white striped lining.

In the back the skirt has a pleat toward each side and the coat is cut square across and finished with a row of buttons at each side and a stitched-down belt with a buckle.

PULLMAN PORTERS TO BE VACCINATED

New York, March 14.—Two cases of smallpox discovered among the negro employees of the Pennsylvania railroad caused the city health department today to request the railroad to vaccinate all its men who may have been in contact with the patients. Steps were immediately taken by the railroad to carry out the request and orders were given especially for the vaccination of Pullman porters on trains east of Pittsburgh.

Last Wednesday a cook on a Pennsylvania work train escaped from the health authorities at Trenton, N. J., where he was under surveillance. He was captured here and found to have smallpox.

An additional case was found when a Pennsylvania train arrived at Washington, D. C., last night. The victim, a negro Pullman cook, was removed to an isolation hospital and all employees of the train were vaccinated.

MILD WEATHER IS FORECAST

Washington, March 15.—Fair, early spring weather over nearly all parts of the country during the coming week is promised by the Weather bureau.

"The weather will be unsettled Monday however," said the weekly bulletin, "along the northern border from the Great Lakes eastward and there will be rains the first part of the week in the North Pacific states."

"The next disturbance of importance will appear on the north Pacific coast Monday night or Tuesday, cross the Great Central Valleys Wednesday or Thursday and the eastern states about Friday; this disturbance will be attended by local rains and snows and it will be followed by colder weather from the northern states east of the Rocky mountains."

DOUBLY PROVEN

Ogden Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

This Ogden citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit.

James Rennie, retired grocer, 2374 Washington Ave., Ogden, Utah, says: "For nearly five years I have been a sufferer from a constant pain across the small of my back and in my sides."

The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and highly colored. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at McIntyre's Drug Store, went to the seat of the trouble, curing me of the terrible backache and making my kidneys normal. Since then I have induced many of my friends to try Doan's Kidney Pills."

A SECOND STATEMENT.

On February 24, 1913, Mr. Rennie said: "I am never without Doan's Kidney Pills and I find that they give me strength and keep my kidneys in order after all other remedies fail. You can continue using my endorsement, as I can't say too much in their praise."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Rennie had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

GETTING GOLD FROM OLD GARBAGE GROUND

Frank Eaton, an experienced miner and prospector, is these days making a little better than wages extracting gold from some of the old dumps that have lain for years at the city garbage grounds a mile north and east of town, says the Carson (Nev.) Appeal.

The particular piles that Eaton is working are made up of the debris that was carted there and deposited from the mint when that institution was working to capacity. The rainy season, by reason of the copious showers, formed lakes of water in the section where the dumps are located, and Eaton, knowing the value of the debris, erected a little dam in the vicinity and at the head of it works his rocker. He carries the dirt to the rocker and puts it through an oscillating process, saving the black sand which contains the gold, and this he later amalgamates. Mr. Eaton showed a small vial filled with gold the result of several "runs." The gold seemed to be in the nature of drillings carelessly thrown away by the mint's assayers when sampling the debris. There is also a lot of fine stuff, probably the millings from gold pieces, when the finishing touches were put on them. Mr. Eaton has worked the dumps for three seasons and his efforts have brought him in fair wages.

CHURCH HONORS GROVER CLEVELAND

Caldwell, N. J., March 15.—Mrs. Thomas J. Preston and her daughter, Miss Marion Cleveland, were the guests of honor last night at the third annual memorial exercises for Grover Cleveland, held at the First Presbyterian church where the Rev. Richard Cleveland, father of Grover Cleveland, was pastor at the time of the late president's birth on March 18, 1837.

The church, which seats about 1000 persons, was crowded with friends and relatives of the late president.

It was announced that during the coming year the old manse, the birthplace of Mr. Cleveland, would be turned into a national museum and also that a library for which Andrew Carnegie gave the money, to be known as the Cleveland memorial library is to be erected close to the manse.

NATIONAL CHILD LABOR CONFERENCE

New Orleans, March 15.—After an auspicious open-air meeting yesterday, the National Child labor conference today began its tenth annual meeting. The sessions will continue three days. Interest today was particularly centered in a review of the organization's work and needs by Owen R. Lovejoy, general secretary of the national committee.

Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma spoke on "The Relation of the Federal Government to the States in the Regulation of Child Labor."

ROCKEFELLER BUYS HUGE BOULDER

New York, March 15.—Speculation over the purchase of a huge boulder which he recently bought for his estate at Pocantico Hills was set at rest when it became known that the rock is to be placed in front of his new house and carved into a huge fountain.

The boulder which, it is said, weighs 250 tons, was discovered on Long Island and Mr. Rockefeller purchased it. It is 20 feet wide and is too large to be placed on a flat car, so a boat has been chartered to take it to Tarrytown. There it will be transferred to a great truck and drawn to Pocantico. The drawing will take a hundred pairs of horses.

ALVEY A. ADEE TO LEAVE SERVICE

Washington, D. C., March 15.—Alvey A. Adey, who has been second assistant secretary of state for nearly twenty years, is reported as about to resign his position. Rumor says that like John Bassett Moore he is dissatisfied with the conditions which obtain in the state department and that he will leave the government service on June 1.

It is almost impossible to estimate the value of Mr. Adey's services to Mr. Bryan. The state department is more formal than a lodge meeting;

Adey and Adey alone knows all the forms. He comes as near to being the American under secretary of state as is possible in the absence of that much needed office.

Adey is the one man who knows what to do in any emergency. If war is declared, Adey knows how to do it, and after it is won he knows how to conclude the articles of peace. His is the big intellect in the department, and his continual service in his present office since 1886 is the force that has given unity to the work of the department.

If Adey goes it will probably be impossible to get as efficient a man as he is to take his place. He has no understudy.

DEATH CALLS STOCKYARDS KING

Chicago, March 15.—The Rev. Maurice J. Dorney, a Chicago Catholic priest, whose name is familiar on both sides of the Atlantic, died yesterday at Mercy hospital, where his sister is one of the nuns in charge. Death was due to paralysis, following heart trouble which attacked him a few weeks ago. Arch-Bishop Quigley was present at the bedside shortly before Father Dorney became unconscious.

The Stockyards priest, Father Maurice J. Dorney, the "King of the Stockyards," was one of the strongest and most picturesque characters in the west. Consul and protector, he had the power for thirty-five years of the ruler of a principality in one of the greatest industrial centers in the world the Packing house district of Chicago. His prestige extended to the White House in Washington and on a memorable occasion he earned the gratitude of Cels every where as a trusted envoy from Irish leaders on this side of the Atlantic, to Charles Stewart Parnell in London.

Kept Out the Saloon.

What is said to be the most Irish parish outside of Ireland, was Father Dorney's office charge of St. Gabriel's at Forty-fifth street the nearest Catholic parish to the main entrance of the Stockyards. To people well acquainted with that part of Chicago no more evidence is needed to illustrate the force of his personality than the fact that by his efforts a mile square of territory surrounding his church has for twenty years been absolutely free from the presence of a saloon.

Irrespective of creed, the residents of the district revered him to an extent that has been a standing wonder to outsiders. Here is the reason as explained by one of the men of the yards:

Beloved by All.

"If you want to battle just say something against Father Dorney and you'll get fight in plenty all the way from kids to grandfathers. No hour was ever too long or too dark or too cold or the roads too rough to stop Father Dorney from going to one who needed help."

Perhaps the meeting of Parnell and Father Dorney in the house of commerce at London will be the public incident to be longest remembered in the civil life of the priest, Father Dorney, it was, who there delivered to the Irish parliamentary leader the documents which showed that the informer, Pigott's accusations against Parnell were based on forgery. The Pigott churches which formed an elaborate attempt to link Parnell with crime upon crime, had threatened to bring about the expulsion of Parnell from the commons and to cause the wrecking of home rule for Ireland. Largely as the result of Father Dorney's successful mission, the prosecution suddenly collapsed and Pigott not long after committed suicide in Spain. Father Dorney had been entrusted with the documents by his life long friend Alexander Sullivan, president of the Irish-National league of America and by Patrick Egan, former treasurer of the Irish National league of Ireland and later United States minister to Chile.

JOSEPH SCOTT MAY

FACE SERIOUS CHARGE

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 15.—According to the police, E. Ives, 20 years of age, arrested Friday night on a charge of chicken stealing, has been identified as a holdup. Joseph Scott of 1709 Indiana avenue, recognized Ives upon seeing him at the city jail, it is said, as the man who attempted to hold Scott up three weeks ago, firing at him when he ran.

The attempted robbery occurred at Third West and Third South streets. Scott lost nothing but his breath, as he kept right on running after the holdup sent two bullets after him.

Detectives had been on the lookout for Ives, whom they suspected of the work, and when he was arrested the other night, as a chicken thief, they went immediately to work to fasten the more serious charge on him. Ives was booked at headquarters, which helped to arouse suspicion that he feared having a more serious charge than chicken stealing to face.
